Changing Faces

Welcome from our new President

Greetings to everyone and thank you to the members who elected me President of the CHS.

With all the new subdivisions that have been created post earthquake there is a need for everyone to plant the right plants in the right place.

There are lots of people who need our help and advice to create their own gardens which in turn creates wonderful liveable subdivisions.

Sharing gardening, horticultural advice and expertise is at the heart of our organisation. We still do this face to face with our meetings. Also we do this via Facebook, Twitter and our website. These digital tools are how the younger generation get a lot of information.

Nothing beats meeting fellow gardeners and horticulturists at a meeting, event or activity where ideas and information can be shared and discussed. This interaction needs to be fostered by members bringing people along to our events.

My role and that of the board is to ensure we have the right activities and events so that people can learn from each other.

I look forward to meeting you all in the next few months.

Alan Jolliffe

The would-be purchaser of the Horticultural Centre has withdrawn the offer after undertaking due diligence and concluding that the costs of reconfiguring the HC to its needs would require a renegotiation of the original price. The CHS will continue to negotiate but will also widen the search for a prospective buyer. The November All About Gardening sessions will be held at the Horticultural Centre and not the Ilex Room. The venue for the December AAG will be advised in the November newsletter.
AGM News
Tony Kunowski reports

As there were 7 nominations for 7 Board positions no elections were needed. “New” members of the Board are Dave Adams, Michael Coulter and Sandi MacRae who featured as our member of the month in June’s newsletter. At its first meeting post AGM the new Board has co-opted our immediate past President Elizabeth Peacock who was appointed as an interim Garden Clubs rep to help make a more permanent appointment here.

In general business Dave Adams queried why the DS Bell bequest was recorded at $204,143 in the full accounts when his recollection was around $350,000. No one present could answer this so I agreed to investigate the issue. The original bequest was in the form of a property which was valued at $140,000 in 1988. In order to maintain the value of bequests an internal interest factor was applied less any payments (eg for plants and equipment). In 2011 the property was sold for a net $454,205 but due to the internal adjustments its book value had grown to $617,734 so in the annual accounts the “property” became a “fund” and its value was reduced by $163,529 – the difference between the book value and net sale proceeds. The Society’s accounts however had become quite complex with these annual “adjustments” and revaluations of bequeathed property and in 2012 the Board opted for a change in accounting policy and to “unwind” the value of the Bell bequest to 1997 level of $204,143 and to cease the practice of applying the internal interest rate annual adjustment.

Awards Presentation
Presented on the night of the AGM were the following awards for appreciation of the outstanding contribution the recipients have made to the Canterbury Horticultural Society.

Kowhai Award - Lindsay Day, Faye Fyfe, Susan Doherty, Dagge Goeke, Beryl Vernon, Denis Peacock, Pam Templeton.

Silver Service Award - Ruth Bird.

Presentations also took place for the Outstanding Horticulturalist Award which was awarded to David Adams and Julian Odering. The John Taylor Award for Leadership in Horticulture was awarded to Athol McCully.

What is the difference between horticulture, gardening and botany?

Some unknown person posed this question on Yahoo which prompted a "best answer" from an equally unknown professional horticulturist (PH). It’s interesting to compare his/her understandings with those adopted by the CHS Board in its strategic plan.

PH: Horticulture is the science of growing plants. In general it covers ornamental plants and also most vegetable and orchard crops. It does not include the growing of grain, that’s agriculture. One could specialize (as I do) in ornamental horticulture and go into landscape design and maintenance.

CHS: Horticulture is the science of growing and managing plants and soils of all types which may be as narrow as a single crop or as broad as a native forest and can include intensive agriculture and forestry.

PH: Gardening isn’t a science, it’s a pastime. One can garden for pleasure or for home orcharding or vegetable gardens, but it’s not a profession for those people. In general all outdoor plant and lawn activity is lumped into "gardening".

CHS: Gardening is the art of cultivating land and growing plants of all types for the benefit of the gardener and visitors.

PH: Botany is a science. It is the study of how plants grow and live. In this science you’re looking more at the ‘inside’ of the plant, whereas in Horticulture you’re looking more at the ‘outside’ of the plant.

CHS: Botany has not been defined in our strategic statements but we do have an Honorary Botanist, Dr Colin Meurk!
The CHS recently became aware of this generous initiative set up to improve the mental and emotional health of individuals dealing with terminal illness and other life changing conditions.

The Flower Garden NZ collects donations of flowers from weddings, florists, events and functions and restyles them into smaller bedside posies. These are then delivered to patients in retirement homes, hospices or hospital.

All their work is voluntary, no one is paid.

“These flowers would normally have been thrown out, so we are recycling and sharing the beauty and joy these flowers bring. The outcome we are wanting to achieve is recycling flowers to lift spirits.” says project co-ordinator, Janine Thomson.

Volunteers are available all hours to collect donations of flowers and to deliver them promptly to recipients. Currently they are networking with people in the health industry to share more flowers and enable as many people as possible to receive a bunch - and have their spirits lifted. Perhaps you can help?

To donate your flowers to benefit others telephone: 021 1482692 or email: donateflowers@gmail.com.

Vegetable Garden

Remove the last Winter crops before they go to seed.

Sow long term crops such as onions, carrots, parsnips, potatoes, leeks etc.

Plant leaf crops - cabbage, lettuce, cauliflower, broccoli etc. Plant six of each every 3/4 weeks to get a constant supply.

Prepare the ground for warm loving plants like tomatoes, peppers, cucumbers and members of the pumpkin family.

At the end of the month beans can be sown when the soil is warmer.

After fruit trees have finished flowering they can be sprayed for pests and fungus diseases.

Darfield delights

Spring into Darfield - 23 September

A warm atmosphere and the enthusiasm of 48 keen gardeners countered the unfortunate weather experienced throughout this day tour to Darfield.

On our arrival at our first garden “Taradale” we were met by owner Annette Millar and welcomed into her home for a delicious “farm baked” morning tea and then a walk around her garden which she has been developing over the last 3 years since her retirement from Peak Hill at the top of Lake Coleridge. Annette was excited and thrilled to host us in her new surroundings.

Our next stop was at Ina Phillips large garden in Stott Road Darfield. The garden was a delightful mixture of native and traditional plantings, highlighted with the Spring colours of bulbs and expansive shaped lawns.

We continued on to the well known homestead of “Gunyah” where we were welcomed by Simonetta Ferarri and hosted to lunch in historic formal settings in front of large open fires. Simonetta gave an informative talk on the long and interesting history of “Gunyah” and its previous owners.

Our last garden for the day was that of Tish Ballagh in the Windwhistle area. The garden was a treat of quirkiness and informality with all manner of fun objects dotted around - an expression of Tish’s love of the garden, her personality and humour.

The much needed rain continued to come down.

We enjoyed a brief stop at “Carols Gift Shop and Nursery” in Darfield before heading home after a wet, but most enjoyable day.

From fields of daffodils to micro-greens

Container Gardening - 15 August

A small group of members attended the Container Gardening workshop held on a very wet Saturday morning. It certainly wasn’t a day to be outside gardening but by the end of the session the participants left with a boot load of plants and seeds planted in containers.

Dave Adams demonstrated how to plant seeds and plants into containers – these ranged from buckets and takeaway containers to foam coffee cups. He also gave advice about potting mix and how to care for your seeds and plants once they start growing. An added bonus was Annette Hill showing participants how to grow micro greens.

David Bell Daffodil Farm - 12 September

It was a perfect Spring morning driving to Leeston, the sun was shining on the snow-capped alps, the lambs were frolicking in the paddocks and the countryside looked green and lush.

A special time of year with so much renewed life, and a time to reflect on the beauty that surrounds us in Canterbury.

The final Interactive Horticulture Workshop is on Saturday 10 October and covers hypertufa and sphagnum moss. See the events tab on our website. If you have any suggestions for the 2016 series please email: office@chsgardens.co.nz.

Our hosts

June & Stu McLachlan and the committee of the Springston Evening Garden Club gave us a warm welcome followed by a scrumptious morning tea in June’s colourful garden before we drove to the paddocks of daffodils to commence picking. Whilst the daffodils were not a great show of colour due to the lateness of the season, there were plenty for all sixty of us to pick and take home. A most enjoyable Spring morning was had by all.

Where were you born and where did you spend most of your childhood?
I was born in Christchurch and lived here until I was twenty when I moved to Blenheim and nannied on a high country station. I then did my nursing training at Wairau Hospital. I then went on my OE and returned to Christchurch permanently in late 1984.

Where do you live now and with whom?
Richard and I and our two boy’s Daniel 22 and, Martin 18 reside in Tai Tapu about 3 kms from our home the Grange which is under going major earthquake repairs. Our two older children have left home.

What aroused your interest in gardening or horticulture?
My maternal grandmother Mrs Robinson or Robbie as she was better known was a life member of the Horticultural Society and a judge and teacher of floral art. Green and white arrangements were her favourites. I spent a lot of my holidays with her and my grandfather in town where I followed Nana around when she did big pedestal arrangements for the shows. Once I remember her doing one at the University when the Queen was visiting. Sadly I did not inherit her passion for floral art however I did become a very keen gardener. They had a big garden at Rakaia Huts where they loved to fish but the garden was Nana’s over-riding love where she grew most of the flowers and foliage for her floral work. My grandfather had a huge veggie garden and supplied the whole family. I always remember them being very generous.

What gardening or horticultural interests do you have now?
I belong to the Horticultural Society, am on the National Executive of Heritage Roses and belong to the Broadfield Garden Club. I have had big gardens since I was married and have always put my own stamp on them.

What’s your favourite plant and why?
My favourite plant is the rose as it has such a variety of species, colours, leaf types and even thorns and hips.

What’s been your most challenging and/or rewarding gardening project?
Starting a garden from scratch is always more challenging than revamping an existing garden. My most rewarding gardening project has been developing a stumpery.

When did you join the CHS and why?
I have been a member of the CHS consistently for at least 10 years probably nearer to 15 years.

What is your passion for the future of the CHS?
My passion for the future of the CHS is to bring like minded people together.
